All Through the Eyes of Love: Journeying with Pan more ponderous and bulky worth Is friendship, whence there ever issues forth A steady splendour; but at the tip-top, There hangs by unseen film, an orb'd drop Of light, and that is love: its influence, Thrown in our eyes, genders a novel sense, At which we start and fret; till in the end, Melting into its radiance, we blend, Mingle, and so become a part of it,— Nor with aught else can our souls interknit So wingedly: when we combine therewith, Life's self is nourish'd by its proper pith, And we are nurtured like a pelican brood. It opened me up to Book One world of "what if" that has remained to this day. Many of his books are of a high enough standard to be chosen, but 'Flow My Tears The Policeman Said' is one of his best.

Soon was he quieted to slumbrous rest: But, ere it crept upon him, he had prestE whispers him so pantingly and close? Leading the way, young damsels danced along, Bearing the burden of a shepherd song; Each having a white wicker over brimm'd With April's tender younglings: next, well trimm'd, A crowd of shepherds with as sunburnt looks As may be read of in Arcadian books; Such as sat listening round Apollo's pipe, Through the Eyes of Love: Journeying with Pan the great deity, for earth too ripe, Let his divinity o'er-flowing die In music, through the vales of Thessaly: Some idly trailed their sheep-hooks on the ground, And some kept up a shrilly mellow sound With ebon-tipped flutes: close after these, Now coming from beneath the forest trees, A venerable priest full soberly, Begirt with ministring looks: always his eye Stedfast upon the matted turf he kept,
And after him his sacred vestments swept.
